

One morning, Lucas woke up and felt something was missing in his life...

He wanted to have a really wonderful friend.
And so he decided, on such a wonderful day,
that he would go out and find one.

Lucas lived not very far from a popular beach. Surely, finding a really wonderful friend among all the people there would be easy. He looked and he looked... yet not one person in this overcrowded place could be considered in the slightest.

How much does two scoops of ice cream cost? Do you see the children who are building a sandcastle? And the man doing yoga?

